Full time

Are you ready for new challenges in an international and innovation-driven environment where you can make a difference? Apply and join our team, be curious, learn, grow, and develop your career together with us. We promise: you are in for a special ride!

The location of the role is in: Vienna

About the job

As a Design Engineer in the RHI Magnesita regional Europe, CIS & Türkiye Engineering Team Steel, you will help us provide best in class solutions for refractory linings of steel aggregates. Directly reporting to the Head of Steel Engineering for Europe, CIS & Türkiye, you will be responsible for planning and creating drawings using 2D/3D CAD programs, as well as generating 3D CAD datasets and calculations (bills of materials).

In addition, your tasks will include

- Acting as an interface between internal (Marketing, R&D, Sales, Manufacturing) and external stakeholders
- Heat transfer calculations
- Managing your own design projects (mid-term perspective)

About You

You are a strong communicator with a collaborative attitude. With your great enthusiasm and creative mindset, you bring new ideas to the table, not only as an individual but also together with your colleagues. You work well in cross-functional teams and are not afraid to take responsibility and make decisions. With your hands-on mentality, structured approach and analytical skills, you proactively seek to improve the status quo. You see change as something positive, can adapt quickly and you like to courageously help shaping the future of RHI Magnesita.

What we expect from you in terms of

Education & Skills

- Higher technical education (e.g., HTL, FH)
- Experience in AUTO-CAD
- Proficient user of the MS Office package

Languages

- German – Proficient/Fluent
- English – Advanced

Work Experience

- First relevant professional experience (internships etc.)

Why you should work for RHI Magnesita

You will perform in a customer focused environment. We live innovation and appreciate an open and pragmatic way of working. From our leaders we expect to drive our further transformation, to engage our people and to give direction. RHI Magnesita is a company where you can be yourself and where not only your resume and experience, but also your personality counts. We aim for global consistency in compensation policies, but also consider local common practices. RHI Magnesita is committed to support its employees through various means to enable the best possible performance.

We offer

- Attractive remuneration packages including global bonus programme

- Local benefits such as public transport annual pass (Wiener Linien), our own RHI Magnesita Café on site and daily meal allowance for numerous eateries (Europlaza)
- A variety of health offers (platform for mental & physical health, sponsoring of sports events etc.) and our own Corporate Benefits platform (incl. shopping discounts)
- RHIM Academy for your ongoing learning & development, incl. full LinkedIn Learning catalogue
- Flexible and trust-based working time

The annual gross salary for this position will start from € 50.000,00 on a full-time basis, depending on your qualification and experience, as well as the amount of overtime and your level of seniority. We will make sure to offer you a competitive salary package that values your relevant background and that's in line with market values.

Sounds like you?

At RHI Magnesita everyone is welcome and encouraged to apply. We evaluate applications based on required qualifications and regardless of gender identity, nationality, ethnic origin, religion, disability, age, sexual orientation, marital or partnership status.
